Madrid – Gabriel-Chemie Ibérica celebrates its 10-year anniversary. Since its establishment, the Spanish site has continuously developed as part of the internationally operating Gabriel-Chemie Group and contributes to the regional support of customers in Spain and beyond.

“We started 10 years ago establishing a small office with three people what afterwards has become a production site joining together thirty very motivated and committed colleagues. In these years, I have learned a lot about the business and our wide range of solutions for our customers. It has been a tough but nice challenge, putting always focus on offering high quality products with the best possible service.

Also, it has been really exciting personal experience seeing how the site has grown in the last years, increasing production lines, receiving new colleagues and expanding our business not only concentrated on Iberia, but also to South and Central America and UK. In addition, it has been a rewarding experience to have the chance to travel around different sites meeting a lot of great colleagues and learning from their background and know-how, and I am very thankful to the Company for giving me that opportunity as well as letting me develop my career within the organization.

The market is changing quite fast in the last few years but with the great support from the Group and the great professional team we are, I think that we are more than ready to face another 10 years and more of success and prosperity to all the stakeholders we are working with,” says David Santiago, Head of Operations, Supply Chain & Administration at Gabriel-Chemie Ibérica.

Over the past decade, the focus has been on strengthening customer relationships, expanding local market presence and fostering close cooperation within the group’s international network of sites.

“Ten years represent an important milestone. Our sincere thanks go to our colleagues in Spain, whose commitment, expertise and team spirit have supported the development of the site,” says Andreas Berger, Chief Commercial & Operating Officer.

Gabriel-Chemie Ibérica provides customised masterbatch solutions for a wide range of applications in the plastics industry. The site benefits from the international research and development expertise of the entire Gabriel-Chemie Group.

Looking ahead, the focus remains on stable development, strengthening long-term customer partnerships and further consolidating the company’s market presence.

With its 10-year anniversary, Gabriel-Chemie Ibérica not only reflects on the past decade but also looks forward to shaping the next phase of development together with customers and partners.
